

Community Cloud

IT resources are provided as a service to a group of customers trusting each other in order to enable collaborative elastic use of a static resource pool.

How can the cloud properties be provided exclusively to a group of customers forming a community of trust?

