

At-least-once Delivery

In case of failures that lead to message loss, messages are retransmitted to assure they are delivered at least once.

How can a message-oriented middleware ensure that messages are received successfully at least once?

